A mother cat with kittens can be in your house between 8 – 12 weeks. Are you able to foster for this length of time? Yes _____ No _____

Many of our cats have been neglected or abandoned and need human contact and attention to feel safe again. Are you able to commit time daily to a cat fostered by you? Yes _____ No _____

Bringing a new cat into your home can upset the existing family pets. Therefore, it can be important to have a separate area or room in which to keep your fostered cat until everyone is settled. Mother cats can be quite protective of their kittens and can view any other pets in the house as a possible danger. We recommend giving mother cats 24 hours to adjust to her new surroundings before she and her kittens are introduced to your entire family.
